

WOODGRAIN MILLWORK

With 65 years of quality craftsmanship and service, Woodgrain Millwork is one of the largest millwork operations in the world. Sumter County is home to one of their strategically located, worldwide locations.

Woodgrain Millwork has been doing business right here in Americus since 2016, when the company acquired another woodmill, Triwood. Woodgrain oversees each step of the supply chain: from owning the forests and cutting the timber to production and delivery of products. One step of that process is done right in our backyard, the cutting and customization of the logs in a woodmill.

There are six of their woodmill facilities across the country, and Americus is one of the lucky six. From the hard work done in Sumter County, high quality wood mouldings, doors, and windows are then created, distributed, and installed in homes and business far and wide.

Woodgrain prides themselves on offering customers multiple options to secure products with short lead-times and flexible delivery options, which is why they chose Americus as one of their homes.

Woodgrain is a family owned and operated company, with the 3rd generation leading the way. What started as a moulding mill in the small town of Cedar City, Utah has now grown into a multi-million dollar business with more than 20 locations, over 3,500 associates, and Sumter County fortunate to secure dozens of those jobs.
